Ignacio Martínez is Assistant Professor of Colonial Latin America in the Department of History at The University of Texas at El Paso. His scholarly and research interests include world history, the Atlantic World, Latin American intellectual history, the history of emotions, and the social and cultural history of the Spanish Borderlands. He is currently working on his research book tentatively titled The Intimate Frontier: Friendship and the Social Development of Northern New Spain.

Ignacio is deeply devoted to his craft as a historian. However, when he succeeds in finding time to get out of the office, he enjoys working out, playing racquetball, and spending time with his family.

R. Joseph Rodríguez is Assistant Professor of Literacy and English Education in the Department of English at The University of Texas at El Paso. He has taught English and Spanish language arts in public schools, community colleges, and universities. His areas of research include children's and young adult literatures, language acquisition, and socially responsible biliteracies. He is the author of the book Enacting Adolescent Literacies across Communities: Latino/a Scribes and Their Rites (2017).

When Joseph is not reading, teaching, or writing, he enjoys cooking, hiking, kayaking, storytelling, and traveling.
